

EBARA Group History

1912 (Nov.)	Inokuty Type Machinery Office founded. Issey Hatakeyama was appointed general manager, under the supervision of Ariya Inokuty, a professor of Tokyo Imperial University.	1994 (Oct.)	Ebara-Infilco was merged into the Company.
1920 (May)	EBARA CORPORATION established A plant was constructed at Minami-Shinagawa, Shinagawa-cho, Ebara-gun, Tokyo, marking the establishment of the Company, which assumed the responsibilities of the Inokuty Type Machinery Office and began the manufacturing of centrifugal pumps.	2000 (Apr.)	Ebara Techno-serve Co., Ltd., was formed to combine sales and maintenance services for the standard pumps business.
1938 (Apr.)	New plant built in Haneda, Kamata-ku, Tokyo The Head Office and manufacturing operations shifted from Shinagawa to the new facility in Haneda.	2000 (Apr.)	New Elliott Corporation, a leading company in the compressors and turbines business, became a wholly owned subsidiary.
1941 (Dec.)	New plant built in Kawasaki The new plant began manufacturing machine tools in accordance with the Machine Tool Manufacturing Law.	2001 (June)	Ebara Kyushu Co., Ltd., established in Kumamoto Prefecture for producing CMP and other equipment, went into full operation.
1945 (Apr.)	Haneda Plant damaged in war. All operations, except for a pump testing facility, fabrication and welding shop, and main building, deemed no longer functional. As a result, production was transferred to the Kawasaki Plant.	2002 (Apr.)	The compressors and turbines business was split off into a separate company, Elliott Ebara Turbomachinery Corporation, located in Chiba Prefecture.
1955 (Jan.)	The Haneda Plant was reopened to spearhead the Company's manufacturing operations.	2002 (June)	The Executive Officer System was introduced.
1956 (Jan.)	Ebara-Infilco was set up to manufacture and sell water treatment equipment.	2002 (Sept.)	The chillers business was split off into a separate company, Ebara Refrigeration Equipment & Systems Co., Ltd.
1964 (Apr.)	EBARA's first post-World War II overseas sales office was opened in Bangkok.	2003 (May)	Ebara Great Pumps Co., Ltd., was established in China to manufacture and sell pumps in China for the oil and gas industries.
1964 (June)	Ebara Service Co., Ltd., was established to provide for after-sales service for EBARA's products.	2005 (Apr.)	An in-house company system was introduced with a corporate structure comprising a Corporate Sector for headquarters functions and three core companies: Fluid Machinery & Systems, Environmental Engineering, and Precision Machinery.
1965 (Apr.)	The Fujisawa Plant was opened as the first facility in Japan to mass-produce standard pumps, and it took over the production of chillers from the Haneda Plant.	2005 (Aug.)	Ebara Boshan Pumps Co., Ltd., was established in China to manufacture and sell large-scale, high-pressure pumps in China.
1975 (Jan.)	EBARA's first overseas production facility, Ebara Indústrias Mecánicas e Comércio Ltda., was established in Brazil.	2006 (May)	Ebara Machinery (China) Co., Ltd., was formed to serve as the manufacturing, sales, and service center for standard pumps in China.
1975 (Nov.)	The Sodegaura Plant was opened to manufacture mainly compressors and turbines.	2009 (Apr.)	EBARA integrated its water treatment plant businesses into Ebara Engineering Service Co., Ltd.
1979 (Dec.)	P.T. Ebara Indonesia was established in Indonesia to manufacture standard pumps in Southeast Asia.	2009 (Oct.)	EBARA integrated its environmental plant businesses into Ebara Environmental Plant Co., Ltd.
1981 (Jan.)	Ebara International Corporation was established in the United States to provide a North American base for the pumps business.	2010 (Jan.)	The Futtsu Plant (Chiba, Japan) was newly established, and the functions of the former Haneda Plant were transferred there.
1985 (Jan.)	EBARA realigned its production systems by integrating the Kawasaki Plant into the Fujisawa Plant.	2010 (Mar.)	EBARA, Mitsubishi Corp., and JGC Corp. started a joint venture in the water business, Ebara Engineering Service Co., Ltd. (renamed Swing Corporation).
1987 (July)	A precision machining facility was opened at the Fujisawa Plant dedicated to production of vacuum equipment for the semiconductor industry.	2010 (Oct.)	Ebara Kyushu Co., Ltd., was merged into the Company.
1989 (Jan.)	Ebara Italia S.p.A. (currently, Ebara Pumps Europe S.p.A.) was established to manufacture stainless steel standard pumps.	2012 (Apr.)	In a realignment of the pumps business, Ebara Techno-serve Co., Ltd., Ebara Yoshikura Hydro-Tech Co., Ltd., and Ebara Environmental Technologies Hokkaido Co., Ltd., were merged.
1992 (Aug.)	Ebara Qingdao Co., Ltd., was founded in China as a center for pump production.	2012 (Nov.)	100th anniversary of the commencement of Ebara operations